Children living on their own since their parents died. An old uncle stays nearby and is trying to help them. Through Thusanang they are now going to school and the community is aware of their situation, Home Based Care volunteers visit them and try to give them psychosocial support in different ways.

When Thusanang field officers visited the children last month they were happier and had more hope for their future. Just before Christmas the children moved to another District and joined some distant relatives. We hope and pray that they are still together and have been received well in their new family.
